Project Management Forum
and
Masters Launch

Wednesday 10 August 2011

5.30pm to 8.00pm - Followed by light refreshments
Edinburgh Room, The Brisbane Club, 241 Adelaide Street, Brisbane

Professor George Earl, Director of Bond University's Institute of Sustainable Development & Architecture warmly extends an invitation to you and your guests to attend a brief presentation on the current impacts on project management in Queensland. Recent events in capital markets and the Queensland climate have demonstrated the strategic importance of project management in new project development and reconstruction.

The forum will be lead by industry professionals demonstrating the challenges that lie ahead of Project Management in the wake of disaster recovery within the construction sector and how effective project management can transform our future infrastructure.

Research indicates that we are currently faced with a global shortage of skilled Project Managers. This is a prime opportunity to speak directly with industry professionals and our academic staff about the challenges experienced in real world of project management. Learn how a Master of Project Management will provide you with the valuable skills to position yourself in the market above your peers.
